KELLER AND LOOMIS OUSTED; COLBERT MATTER IS TABLED

BOARD OF REGENTS DEALS WITH TWO INSTRUCTORS.

A TRIAL ON JULY 27

Charges of Incompetency, Neglect, Disloyalty, and Circulation of False and Defamatory Statements Made

Dr. Fred Keller and Burt W. Loomis, instructors in the education department at the State Teachers College, were dismissed from the College faculty by the board of regents of the institution at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the College. The two instructors were relieved of all duties as faculty members of the College and are under suspension pending a hearing to be held at the College at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of July 27.

If the charges preferred against the two men are proved, the board of regents proposes to remove and discharge them at the hearing week after next.

Charges of incompetency, neglect, and failure to perform the duties of a faculty member, combined with those of disloyalty and the circulation of false and defamatory statements calculated to injure the good name and standing of the institution, were made against Dr. Keller and Mr. Loomis.

The two men will be allowed to appear before the board in person and by counsel to defend themselves against the charges and to introduce testimony if they so desire, at the hearing July 27. When interviewed this morning, Dr. Keller was noncommittal, but Mr. Loomis intimated that he would stand trial.

Classes Taught by Others

The education classes taught by the two men are in the hands of other faculty members today. A temporary teaching arrangement will be made later, there being only a little more than three weeks left in the term. Meanwhile, a notice posted at the College today said:

"Until further notice, Homer T. Phillips will be acting chairman of the department of education." Dr. Keller formerly held this post.

The regents were in session from about 10 o'clock yesterday morning until after 6 o'clock last night. The charges against the two teachers were preferred in writing about 6 o'clock, after they had both been before the board for more than half an hour. Shortly afterward the regents adjourned.

Although the matter of the reinstating of George H. Colbert to the College faculty was not scheduled to come before the board yesterday, it was made an order of business shortly after noon when a committee of four students waited upon the body.

A petition signed by a large number of students was presented to the board, and it is understood that the students were quizzed for some time by the regents concerning the situation.

Colbert Petition "On File."

After discussing the Colbert matter until almost 5 o'clock, the board passed the following, which was presented this morning to Clarence Rising, chairman of the student committee:

"On motion of Charles A. Lee, seconded by True D. Parr, the petition signed by Ray Bloomfield and others, requesting that George H. Colbert be employed as a teacher of mathematics, be placed on file with the records of the College and that said petition receive due consideration by the board. Motion carried."

The student committee reported its visit to the board at a mass meeting of the student body held at 4:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the College auditorium.

Dr. Keller and Mr. Loomis were called before the board shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is understood that both reiterated statements published in yesterday's Democrat-Forum and Tribune over their signatures.

After about 30 minutes of conference, the two men came out of the president's office and waited in the main office. The regents were busy for about 5 minutes and then W. A. Rickenbrode, secretary, appeared and handed each man a copy of the charges.

Accused Make No Statements

Both read them over carefully and then glanced over them again.

"I guess that lets us out," Mr. Loomis said.

"Let's go fishing," Dr. Keller said.

Dr. Keller and Mr. Loomis were interviewed this morning. The former was at his home, 422 West Thirteenth street, carrying on some correspondence. He refused to make a statement.

Mr. Loomis was at his desk at the College, clearing up some of his work. He also had nothing to say.

Both of the men under question resigned from the College faculty in the spring, the resignations to take effect September 1. Dr. Keller will become city superintendent at his home town, Jonesboro, Ark. Mr. Loomis will become superintendent of schools at Flat River, Mo.

Dr. Keller has been connected with the College for seven years. Mr. Loomis came here in 1921.

Following is the text of the charges made in writing against the two men and handed to them by Mr. Rickenbrode yesterday:

The Formal Charges.

"You are hereby notified that the board of regents of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College hereby charges you with incompetency and neglect and refusal to perform your duties as a member of the faculty of said college, and that you have been guilty of disloyalty to said college in that you, while a member of said faculty, have circulated false and defamatory statements against said college, which said statements were calculated and intended to injure the good name and standing of said college, to wit: That said college and the present officers thereof have wrongfully issued diplomas and conferred degrees not earned or merited by students.

"You are further notified that said charges against you were formally preferred at a meeting of the board of regents of said college held at said on the fourteenth day of July, 1926, and that said board of regents will meet at the office of the president of said college in Maryville, Mo., at 1 o'clock p. m., on the twenty-seventh day of July, 1926, at which time and place you shall have an opportunity to appear before said board in person and by counsel to defend yourself against said charges and to introduce testimony if you desire to do so.

"You are further notified that said board of regents proposed to and will remove and discharge you as a member of said faculty on said twenty-seventh day of July, 1926, in the event that you are found guilty of said charges.

"You are further notified that by order of said board of regents made at said meeting held on the fourteenth day of July, 1926, you are hereby and now relieved of all duties as a member of said faculty pending the hearing and determination of said charges and that you do no classwork or work of any kind at said college pending said hearing to be held on the twenty-seventh day of July, 1926, but pending said hearing and trial you will continue to receive your regular compensation as a member of said faculty.

"By order of the board of regents of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College this fourteenth day of July, 1926."

(Signed) W. F. PHARES,
President.

(Attest) W. A. RICKENBRODE,
Secretary.

Acted on Statutes.

The action of the board yesterday was in accordance with section 11504, revised statutes of Missouri, 1919, pertaining to the removal of a faculty member. Following is the statute:

AUTO FIRM TO HAVE OPENING

McDONNELL-CHEVROLET CO. IN NEW QUARTERS SATURDAY

IN J. H. GRAY BUILDING

Modern Shop Is Special Pride of Company.—Show and Storage Rooms Are Commodious.

The new quarters of the McDonnell-Chevrolet Co., in the modern garage building just completed by John H. Gray, at 114 West Second street, will be formally opened to the public Saturday afternoon and Saturday night.

Music will be furnished after 3 o'clock by a seven-piece orchestra, and refreshments and prizes will be given the visitors. Chevrolet officials from Kansas City will be here.

The new building affords unusually attractive and commodious quarters, and the latest of machinery has been installed. At the front is a showroom behind large, plate glass windows. This room is 36 by 40 feet and the walls are attractively tinted in buff. It contains also a parts and stock room, office desks, a ladies' rest room, and, on a balcony, an office and private salesroom. The company features a modern bookkeeping system and a system of flat rate charges by which bills for repair work can be estimated before the work is done.

J. C. McDonnell, president of the company, will be in charge and Miss Hazel Miller will be office manager. Fred Newlon is sales manager and Dean Partridge and Robert Moody are salesmen.

In the rear is a large storage room and a completely equipped shop, in which the company takes especial pride. Admission to the storage room is gained through a door opening on Second street and automatically opened and closed by the pressing of a button in the office. The storage room is 36 by 40 feet and will accommodate fifty cars, but a large part of this space will be taken by the company's complete line of Chevrolet pleasure cars and trucks.

The shop, screened in and compactly arranged, is located next to the parts room, only a partition separating them. It is declared to be the most modern and completely equipped shop for Chevrolet cars outside of Kansas City.

When a motor needs repairs, it will be taken from the car and carried by an overhead hoist to a cleaning vat. It then will be carried progressively to the various benches and machines where work is needed. By this system the company features specialized workmanship.

William Whitney, who recently completed a course of instruction in Chevrolet repairing, will be in charge of the shop.

There also is a wash rack in the rear. The entire floor of the building is of concrete, and the roof is supported by steel girders, without any posts. The heating plant is of the hot water type. Large windows in steel frames furnish an abundance of light.

The adjoining garage, to be occupied by the Arnold-Strong Motor Co., has not been completed.

.33 of An Inch Rain.

The total rainfall last night and this morning measured .33 of an inch, according to J. R. Brink, official weather observer.

Prominent speakers have been secured for each day of the annual Barnard Picnic, according to Clyde Perkins and Miss Margaret Matson, who compose the committee on speakers.

R. R. Brewster to Speak Here on Next Thursday

Kansas City Attorney, Senatorial Candidate In 1922, Campaigning State In Interest of Williams

R. R. Brewster of Kansas City, Republican Senatorial candidate against James A. Reed in 1922, will speak in the Circuit court room here on the evening of July 22, it was announced today by J. F. Hull. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Brewster is campaigning the state in the interest of Senator George H. Williams, who is seeking the nomination to succeed himself. He is being opposed by David M. Proctor of Kansas City and Blodgett Priest of St. Louis.

Mr. Brewster spoke here during the 1924 Presidential campaign and is well and favorably known in this section of the country. He is an excellent orator. It is understood that this will be the only Williams meeting to be held here before the primary August 3.

It is not known whether or not Mr. Proctor or Mr. Priest will visit the county in the interest of their campaigns.

Return From Wyoming.

Dr. Vilas Martin and son, Forrest, returned last night from Cody, Wyo., where they were called a week ago by the illness of R. C. Hargreaves. He has many friends in Maryville, made during his visits to Dr. and Mrs. Martin.

LEARN ABOUT SEPTIC TANK

ABOUT 30 PERSONS ATTEND DEMONSTRATION AT WRAY FARM

NEW TANK IS BUILT

Project to Have Been Carried Out at Elmer Froyd Farm Near Bedison Today Postponed.

About thirty persons attended the septic tank demonstration at the farm of Ernest Wray, northeast of Maryville, yesterday afternoon. A single-chamber septic tank, 2½ wide by 5 feet 8 inches long, inside measurement, and deep enough to hold 3 feet of sewage below the outlet pipe, was constructed. This tank is designed to successfully take care of the sewage of a farm family from three to seven persons.

The tank was built at a total cost for mterials of $15.58. This does not include the cost of labor nor the tile necessary to take the sewage to the tank and the tile leading away from the tank.

R. C. Barcus, engineer for the Portland Cement Assn., Harold LaMert, engineer for the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri, and J. Ross Fleetwood, county extension agent, were in charge of the project. Work began at 2 o'clock and the tank was completed by 5 o'clock.

A similar demonstration was planned today at the farm of Elmer Froyd near Bedison, but it was postponed indefinitely because the rain made it impossible for Mr. Froyd to be in readiness.

Mr. Barcus and Mr. LaMert left this morning for Kingston, Aladwell County, where similar demonstrations will be held.

"The demonstrations yesterday showed the practicability of cement septic tank construction," Mr. Fleetwood said today. "I believe that all those present realized how worth while the project is and I am confident that it will aid in ushering in an era of reaction along the line of farm sanitation."

Among those present yesterday were: Mrs. Thomas O'Day, G. W. Herren, J. W. Herren, David Lehmer, Glenn Jones, Roland Garrett, P. A. Evans, C. L. Garrett, Lester Reaksecker, Irvin Jones, Alfred Jones, W. T. Doyle, R. A. Kinnaird, G. K. Arney, Al Gross, D. O. Belt, F. M. Chambers, F. L. Curfman, Lester Reaksecker, jr., and J. O. Miller, Maryville; J. D. Shearer, Hopkins; Ray Proctor, Pickering; the Rev. Father Alphonse, Conception Abbey; Mr. and Mrs. Wray, and those conducting the experiment.

Says Handwriting on Message Is Ormiston's

Expert Compares It With Authentic Specimen Of That Of Missing Radio Operator.

Los Angeles, July 15.—A direct assertion that the telegram received by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Aimee Sempel McPherson, three days after her disappearance and stating that Mrs. McPherson was alive and well was in the handwriting of Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio operator at the Angelus temple, was made to the grand jury by Milton Carlson, handwriting expert today.

Just before he entered the grand jury room, Carlson stated he was prepared to tell the grand jury that the writing on the original telegram sent here from Oakland and an authentic specimen of Ormiston's writing were identical.

Blames Bank Failures on Florida Money Out

Chain of Forty-Nine Financial Institutions Go Under After Land Values Decline.

Atlanta, Ga., July 15. — The withdrawal of surplus funds invested in Georgia banks by Florida banks during the period of the Florida boom was blamed entirely by T. R. Bennett, superintendent of the state banking department, for the failure of a chain of forty-nine Georgia state banks.

Declining land values in Florida after the boom era ended and normal conditions returned to that state caused heavy withdrawals of funds lent to the Georgia banks, causing a crisis.

"It is impossible to state whether or not the depositors in the Georgia banks affected will lose by the closings," the state officer said, "but we are hopeful that they will not."

Even Kings Don't Know What They Are Getting Into

Sophia, July 15.—Tsar Boris of Bulgaria has gone abroad to find a bride and not to escape plotters at home, Premier Lyattcheff said today in an interview granted exclusively to the International News.

"Reports that Boris is being forced out by military and political groups of the country are grossly untrue and were contracted in hostile circles to Bulgaria," the premier said. "Boris enjoys the love and admiration of all parties, even of the communists. All Bulgaria regards him as indespensible for the good of the nation. Reports of the movement favoring his brother Cyril are perfectly ridiculous.

"Very likely, however, there is truth in the supposition that the king is looking for a spouse. His departure was purely voluntary and merely a pleasure trip."

Assertions made by the premier were confirmed by leaders of the main parties of Bulgaria.

STARTS WORK ON BIG BUDGET

ALL DEPARTMENTS MUST REPORT BY AUGUST 1.

$3,600,000,000 LIMIT

Large Building Program To Be Inaugurated Will Necessitate Pruning Knife Methods In Funds.

Washington, July 15.—Scaling down costs to the penny, H. M. Lord, budget director, has started the annual job of preparation of the government's new budget.

All departments were notified today to have preliminary estimates of their probable financial requirements in the hands of the budget official by August 1. Some estimates already have been submitted.

With $3,600,000,000 set as the limit for all government cost, indications pointed to the probability of reductions in the original departmental estimates by many millions of dollars. In view of the large building program and other certain increased expenses, to keep costs within the limit, some drastic use of the pruning knife will be required in other quarters.

Officials anticipated that the most important departments probably would ask for somewhat more than was spent in the fiscal year ending June 30. One-third of the government cost for 1927 will come from national defense and expenses resulting from the war.

Take Steps to Stabilize Finances of Belgium

Brussels, July 15.—The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 135 to 9, today finally passed legislation giving the king extraordinary power to deal with the financial situation. The king becomes a virtual dictator for six months and is empowered to take drastic steps to stabilize the franc.

The program includes restricting exports of necessities and imports of luxuries and has already been drawn up.

Forest Fire Condition Continues Dangerous

Most Serious Blaze in Northwest Burning in Northeastern Washington.

Portland, July 15.—Dangerous forest fire conditions, which have prevailed in Oregon and Washington since last Friday, continued today and little hope was seen by C. A. Dague, federal fire weather forecaster, for break in the situation.

The most serious fire in the Northwest, according to official reports, is burning in the Colville national forest in northeastern Washington.

FARM RELIEF IS BIG ISSUE

WILL PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN CONGRESSIONAL RACES.

IS OPINION OF M'NARY

Oregon Senator Thinks Revived Newberryism Will Not Be of Such Great Importance.

(By Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican of Oregon, leader of the farm bloc. Written for the International News Service).

Washington, July 15.—One of the great issues of the 1926 Congressional election will be the problem of farm relief.

It is the great issue but how far it will go toward deciding the Congressional campaign depends upon the financial condition of American farmers after they have harvested their crops.

There will be other issues, of course, due to local conditions in several states. In some communities the local issue probably will overshadow the national problem. In other states, the wet and dry issue will be foremost.

I think the expenditures in the recent Pennsylvania primary have revived the issue of Newberryism. It will be a great issue where candidates are accused of making large expenditures. In states where candidates spend large sums, you will hear of it but I don't think it will be an important issue.

The agricultural problem, however, may be the dominating issue. How large it becomes will depend upon the size of the crop this year, the price paid to the farmers for their products and the size of the surplus.

In my opinion, the farmers who raise the basic commodities, such as corn, wheat, cotton, cattle and hogs, will demand that the tariff be made effective on their products and will not continue to accept the world price level for their products while paying domestic price levels for all they must buy.

Consequently, I anticipate that in the great rural Pacific, there will be continued agitation for legislation which will provide a plan of segregation surplus crops and disposing of them in the world market.

U. S. Aid Sought to Find Missing Blimp

Detroit Flying Society Alarmed At Failure Of Balloon To Report Its Position.

Chicago, July 15.—The aid of army and navy officials at Washington was sought here today in an effort to trace the missing Detroiter, entry of the Detroit Flying Society in the Elks national balloon race.

Alarmed at the failure of the Detroiter to report its position, Thomas Wolfe, secretary of the Chicago Association of Commerce committee on aviation, called a meeting to petition federal authorities to take up the search.

Guy Guernsey, Elks committee chairman, and William P. McFarland, president of the Chicago Aeronautic Society, were summoned into conference by Mr. Wolfe. The Detroiter now has been missing nearly forty-eight hours.

French Finance Report Is Made to Treasury

However, Officials Insist That No Hints Of Modification Of Agreement Already Reached Were Made.

Washington, July 15.—The report on the French financial situation was presented to the treasury today by the French finance attaches of the embassy. The French officials insisted that they made no report aimed at modification of the French debt agreement.

Treasury officials said that no official information had been received indicating that M. Caillaux, finance minister, might want to modify the agreement.

It was reiterated that this government will not approve a safety clause in the settlement.

1926 Chautauqua Program Is Fine

Iowa, South and North Dakota and Minnesota Editors Unite in Acclaim of Week's Offering.

The Democrat-Forum has received copies of newspaper comments on the 1926 Redpath Vawter chautauqua program to be given in Maryville from August 5 to 11, sent out by Mr. Vawter's publicity department.

The circuit which visits here opened June 2 at Keota, Iowa, and during the month of June traversed Eastern Iowa towns as far north as Charles City, and west to Sioux City, into South Dakota touching Valley City, and then to Moorhead, Minn., up to St. Cloud, down to Austin and back into Iowa in early July, and is now traversing that state to drop down into Missouri to pick up three towns, then swing back into Iowa, going back to Missouri again in early August and closing the season about September 1st in Louisiana, north of St. Louis.

The long trail up to date has been marked by satisfied audiences everywhere according to word from Vawter headquarters, and the program is making practically 100% good every day in every town.

The Keota Eagle, published in the opening town, pronounced it "One of our most successful chautauquas, fully up to the usual high standard and superior to last year." The Eagle commends every program.

The Winfield, Iowa, Beacon, published in the second town on the circuit, says the talent was "Far above the average; the lecturers, music and plays were all good," and adds "It is conceded to be the best program in years, of high order and greatly appreciated by large crowds. At $2.00 it is the biggest buy we know of. In no other way can one expect to enjoy so much and learn so many things at so little cost."

The Marion Sentinel thinks "Keith Vawter added to his laurels in no small way. It was the most successful and most enjoyable chautauqua ever held here."

L. J. Abbey, president of the Sioux City chautauqua association, in an interview in the Sioux City Journal says: "The program was as good or better than any we have ever had." The Sioux City Tribune devoted many columns to the program, including special illustrations.

The Sioux Falls Argus-Leader praised every program. The program of the Krantz Orchestra "thoroughly entranced the audience" it says. The cast of "Applesauce" it said "Revealed true art" and the players were "excellently suited to their roles and played realistically." The large audience was "tremendously pleased with 'So This Is London' and the cast "displayed excellent talent." Of Davis the magician they said "laughter and surprise that almost caused side aches" ensued from the program. "One of the outstanding musical treats of the program" was the way they described Carlo Fischer Co. and Nevada Van der Veer. Every program was praised.

The Brookings, S. D. Register says "The success of this year's program made it easy to secure guarantors for next year's return engagement. The entire program seemed well balanced and it all fitted to gether to give everybody something they particularly liked."

The Luverne, Minn., Herald says: "Chautauqua met highest expectations of patrons. Program said to surpass that of all previous years. Return in 1927 assured. The attendance was more uniformly large than that of any other year and greater interest was shown in the Junior chautauqua work than ever before."

M. S. Ward, secretary of the Valley City, N. D., chautauqua association, wired Mr. Vawter that "all talent was good. 'Applesauce,' Filipinos, Upton, Fischer Trio and Van der Veer were exceptionally good. Everything satisfactory. 5,000 people saw 'Applesauce,' 3,000 heard Van der Veer and 5,000 are expected to hear 'So This Is London.'"

The Wahpeton, N. D., Farmers says: "Chautauqua programs please big audiences during entire week. The chautauqua qualifies as without question the best entertainment of its kind ever given in Wahpeton."

The foregoing are of course just brief sentences from the lengthy write ups given the program, but give a fair idea of the splendid reception it is being given.

"Every program, every day, is making 100 per cent good in every town" according to field manager C. C. Collett, "and not in many years have we had such uniformly fine reports from our platform superintendents, local committies and the newspapers. The best evidence of the satisfaction the program is giving is shown by the rapidity with which towns are recontracting for next season. I believe the looked for revival in chautauqua interest has arrived."

Jim Reed, Back Home, Is Doing No Talking

Senior Missouri Senator Refused to Comment on Plans for Senate Slush Fund Probe.

Kansas City, Mo., July 15.—Senator Jim Reed is back home, acclaimed in connection with primary probes, prohibition purgatives and presidential possibilities, but talking about none.

The senior senator from Missouri, despite his repudiation of 1924, is out to carry further fight against the epic Reed bugaboo—world courts and "entangling alliances."

Questioned today concerning his chairmanship plans for the Chicago senatorial probe of the Illinois primary funds, scheduled to begin July 26, the Missouri senator is dissenting.

"We have nothing further to announce than that already revealed in Washington. Subpoenaes have been issued and the meeting place agreed. Anything further I cannot tell. That would be showing a poker hand to the other fellow," Reed commented.

Among home folk, Reed is adament concerning his recent impaling of W. C. T. U. methods and prohibition forces in the Vare disclosures of the Pennsylvania primaries, and he isn't hinting what his Illinois procedure will be.

"The world court issue is not dead," Reed said, in noting Washington quotations to the contrary.

"Europe is ready to sit down to the conference table with the United States at any time. And once we are there, they won't let us get up without alliances.

"To enter such agreements is like getting married with reservations," he said.

"The fight is to go on. Those who opposed this issue from the first are not to be deceived by any pretense that we are in no danger," the senator concluded.

Coolidge's Fishing Is Talk of Capital

Stories Differ Concerning President And His Catches.—The Usual Fish Story Told.

Washington, July 15. — President Coolidge's new hobby—fishing—has become the talk of the capital. Not since Mr. Coolidge was pictured astride his electric hobby horse has discussion of the President's diversion attracted such universal comment.

Friends of the chief executive today expressed themselves as pleased that the president has taken to sports so vigorously.

The President's fishing experiments show, they point out, that Mr. Coolidge enjoys sports as much as anyone, at the proper times and occasions. Plunged deep into affairs of the nation the president, heretofore has taken comparatively little interest in sports, consequently he was pictured as "different" a person without hobbies.

The fishing also does much to contradict Mr. Coolidge's reported statement that "Fishing is only a small boy's pastime." The president later explained this statement by saying he was referring to a small pond here inhabited principally by minnow but where, incidentally, Senator Ernst of Kentucky baits his hook.

"I don't think there is any question that Mr. Coolidge always has liked sports," said Senator McNary of Oregon, farm bloc chieftatin. "Any man who will risk his life on a hobby horse must have some sporting blood."

Senator Borah of Idaho said "I am inclined to believe that there are fishes and fishes. Perhaps some of the correspondents have been seeing too many."

The element of mystery as to the identity of the "catches" is considerably heightened by the various accounts from Paul Smiths. On the afternoon Mr. Coolidge was reported to have landed his first fish, although a large number of correspondents were on hand, none seemed to know about it. That night it was officially reported, according to dispatches, that a one-pounder had been landed. The next day the fish had increased to three pounds.

Later Mr. Coolidge was reported to have taken a pickerel within a few hours. Dispatches described it as a bass.

Sam A. Jones, southwest of Burlington Junction, is putting his second cutting of alfalfa hay in the barn. Maryville Now Has New Industry; It's Raising Guinea Pigs

Maryville has a brand new industry. Raymond Branson, who lives at 707 East Second street, is the founder and he is assisted by his three younger brothers, Derrell, Clyde and Walter Ray Branson. The boys' business is guinea pigs.

Raymond started in business last year with a single pair of the animals. He has sold a number and now has twenty-eight. They reproduce every two months and there are several pigs in each litter.

The boys got the idea from St. Francis Hospital, which uses the animals for blood tests and other experiments. Raymond and his brothers sell theirs, a dozen at a time, to a Kansas City concern, but they are getting ahead of their market, and yesterday they brought a few up town to dispose of to individuals. The pigs make nice pets, the boys say.

Baby, Caught Fishing, not Breaking the Law

Children Under Seven Years of Age Incapable of Committing Crime, Albert Pratt Rules.

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—How old must a person be to fish legally?

This was the question which Jay Gould, state game and fish commissioner, asked Albert P. Pratt, assistant attorney general, when he a saw a four months old baby lying in the bottom of a boat with a fish line tied to its wrist.

Pratt in a formal decision decided that the child was not fishing illegally because the law provides that children under seven years are incapable of committing crime.

"Why the line was not tied to the baby's toe, so that as he kicked from time to time—as babies are said to do—the bait would be properly activated and motivated in the water according to the approved manner for successful angling and for setting the hook when the larcenous fish attempts to purloin the bait is beyond me," Pratt stated in his decision.

He held, however, that the mother and father of the child, who were fishing from the boat, would be responsible for the child's action if he had really been fishing illegally.

The Hohenzollerns May Get Back 51,000 Acres

Berlin, July 15.—If the former kaiser and the Hohenzollerns will knuckle down to farming their private estates, Prussia will return 51,000 acres of their properties to them, the Prussian government has informed legal representatives of the ex-kaiser.

This land, the Republicans assert, if properly farmed, will yield 1 million dollars a year, which they consider sufficient sustenance for Wilhelm Hohenzollern. The former kaiser also is demanding cash settlement for 140,000 acres the republic refuses to return to him. Prussia's new offer calls for the return of the crown prince's headquarters at Oel's to the national government and other concessions.

Mrs. Robert Wolfers, of New York, is here for a two weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wolfers, and with other relatives and friends.—Hopkins Journal.

More Road Bonds to Be Sold in Short Time

Issuance of Additional 7½ Million Dollars to Exhaust Allotment for Present Year.

Jefferson City, July 15.—The state board of fund commissioners yesterday received a request from the highway commission for the issuance of an additional 7½ million dollars in state highway bonds, which, when sold, will leave but 5 million dollars remaining of the original 60-million-dollar bond issue.

The fund commission will meet today to set a date for the sale of the bonds.

This will exhaust the bond issue allotment for this year of 15 million dollars.

Five million dollars in bonds, all that remains from the original issue, will be sold next year, department officials said today, which, when added to expected receipts from the motor vehicle registration fees and collections from the gasoline tax, will give the department approximately 13 million dollars to be expended upon highway construction in 1927.

With the disposal of the 7½-million-dollar allotment now under consideration, the state will have spent 15 million dollars of the bond issue money on the highways this year.

Will Now Have Blanks for Stolen Airplanes

Kansas City, July 15.—What can a patrolman, when he sees a stolen airplane flying above him, do except say, "Well, there he goes?"

This question became pertinent last night when the motor theft bureau at police headquarters turned its attention to a stolen airplane.

John K. "Tex" LaGrone, a commercial flier at Richards field, has reported the theft of an airplane from Richmond, Ind.

"Ah," said Sergt. Sam Carson, "a case for our new air patrol! Operator, get me the 'fly cops'.

The aviators couldn't be roused, for they had no telephone.

"Well," the sergeant decided, 'We'll take care of it ourselves. Guess those fellows couldn't very well stop him up there to get his engine number anyway."

Carson drew a line through the word "car" on the regular form and substituted the word "airplane."

"Tomorrow," he said, "we'll have some blanks printed for airplanes."

Moral Herein Is "Do Your Own Love Making"

It is one of the strange inconsistencies of human nature that, while some men would walk up to the guns of an enemy without a tremor, they find a terrible inclination to turn tail and fly when they are called on to face the battery of a pair of sweet eyes and ask a simple question to which they have reason to expect a gratifying answer.

This is why so many thousands of lovers seek courage in pen and ink and distance, and make the postman the innocent ambassador of their desires; but it is scarcely conceivable that a man who has this resource open to him should choose the alternative of getting a valorous and obliging friend to propose for him.

That there is a decided element of danger in a proposal by proxy was proved by the evidence given in a recent breach of promise case.

The defendant sought to excuse himself by declaring that his proposal was not a serious one. It appeared that an intimate friend was deeply in love with the fair plaintiff, but could not nerve himself to put his fate to the test. The defendant had volunteered, "just as a joke," to take his place and make the best of his client's case. Unhappily he carried the joke too far; for, instead of laying his friend's heart at the lady's feet, he laid his own, and, to his amazement, was accepted.

It proved an expensive jest, however, for it cost him $1,500 to disentangle himself from its consequences; and no doubt if ever again invited to plead a friend's lovesuit, he will be justified in retorting, "Do it yourself."

In another case, where a defendant sought to excuse himself on the ground that a friend had proposed for him without his full consent, the engagement, which had been weakly confirmed by subsequent letters and presents, was pronounced binding; and when a verdict for $1,500 was awarded to the plaintiff, the judge humorously suggested that "as he had wooed by proxy he might see his way to pay by proxy," which, alas! is quite another thing.

Courage Not Lacking in Neanderthal Man

If one has the Neanderthal type of skull, one ought to find compensation in having the Neanderthal type of physical courage. Not everything in primitive man is to be scorned. He may have been afraid of the thunder and have invented a mythological deity to which he attributed it, but he was not afraid of the wolf or the bear and went forth with his trusty stone ax to slay them.

We only wish that we could retain more of his sturdy qualities. Even the Neanderthal man had a soul. He understood nature and the procession of the seasons, though he had no chronology. He was very prehistoric without knowing it, and he cared very little for remote posterity, but he was solicitous of the welfare of his immediate descendants or we should not be here.

He was a creature of prodigious appetite and all his little Neanderthals had appetites in proportion, so that the daily hunt for food was his chief occupation. Sometimes he came home empty handed, but when he did make a killing there was a family gorge.

He was a being considerably like us anatomatically and had a use for his vermiform appendix. Sometimes his intellectuals may have been stirred; and as he sat on the piazza of his cave of an evening, he may have pondered. A fine sunset may have moved him, but not so much as the sight of a mastodon. That moved him mightily or made him move. He went inside the cave.

He may have bludgeoned mastodons with the help of his neighbors; unless the scientists spoil this speculative hypothesis by pointing out that John W. Neanderthal and the mastodon were not contemporaneous.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 15.—Wheat was weak on the Chicago Board of Trade today while the coarse grain pits displayed real strength. The major grain registered fractional losses in all positions as a reaction to its recent bulge, while corn was sharply higher and oats gained fractionally over the previous close in all positions.

Wheat prices fluctuated within a range of about 2 cents on a nervous, choppy market throughout the day. The close was a half to ¾ cents lower.

Corn was from 1 to ¾ to 2½ cents over the close yesterday after an active day of trading.

Oats closed from 1-8 to ¼ cent higher in all positions after a dull day.

Provisions closed uneven, lard registering a loss of sales by packers which were not well taken by the market.

Oil Well Now Cased to 1,100 Foot Depth

Reaming at the Quitman oil well continued last night and today in spite of the heavy rain which made travel difficult to and from the well. This afternoon the reaming and casing had been completed to the 1,100-foot depth, and only 91 feet remained before fresh drilling will begin. The old hole, however, has been partially filled by cavings and cuttings from the reamer, and it is necessary to re-drill before reaming.

CORN CROP IS 80 PER CENT

NODAWAY COUNTY WHEAT REPORTED AS 78 PER CENT.

OATS PUT AT 76 P. C.

Missouri Corn Reported At 80 Per Cent Normal—Shows Wide Variation In Height.

Farmers of Nodaway county report the conditions of the 1926 corn crop to be 80% of normal. They put their wheat at 78% of a full crop and from present expectations the county should thresh 229,830 bushels this year. The condition of oats is reported as 76% of normal, potatoes 83%, tame hay 78%, pastures 86%, and apples 60%.

Atchison County reported the condition of corn as 85 per cent of normal, wheat 81%, 95,300 bushels of wheat expected, oats 73%, potatoes 80%, tame hay 66%, pastures 84%, and apples 60%.

Andrew County reported the condition of corn as 75%, wheat 67%, 83,160 bushels of wheat expected, oats 65%, potatoes 83%, tame hay 50%, pastures 67% and apples 50%.

Gentry County crop conditions are, corn 80%; wheat 50%, wheat bushels 15,840; oats 78%; potatoes 74%; tame hay 67%; pastures 82%; apples 50%.

Holt crop conditions are: corn 85%; wheat 85%; wheat bushels 381,820; oats 60%; potatoes 80%; tame hay 85%; pastures 70%, and apples 55%.

Worth County reported crop conditions as follows: corn 69 per cent; wheat 72%; wheat bushels 21,560; oats 80%; potatoes 94%; tame hay 72%; pastures 85%; and apples 70%.

The Missouri corn crop is 80% normal, now indicating 28.24 bushels per acre upon the 6,825,000 acres planted, totalling 192,738,000 bushels, according to E. A. Logan of the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture Economics and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture. The yield in 1925 was 201,338,000 bushels upon the same acreage as planted this year, from a July condition of 89%; yield in 1924 was 170,612,000; the 5-year average is 183,041,000.

Missouri corn planting ran through a long season, due to delay in farm work early in April and ground becoming hard and dry in latter part of May; Corn shows a wide variation in height, as some has recently been plowed the first time, and considerable acreage laid by at end of June. The crop improved rapidly in first half of June from good rains, but latter part of month was too cool and dry. Recent rains are bringing corn forward rapidly. Some northern counties were too wet, and much of the south and southeast were too dry, with great variation of soil conditions in different sections. Chinch bugs are menacing the crop in many central counties. The crop is generally clean, except a few flat uplands, creek and river bottoms.

Wheat at 78 per cent (compared to 68 per cent June 21st) now indicates 12.87 bushels per acre upon 1,290,000, totaling 16,705,000 bushels compared to 21,965,000 from 1,664,000 acres in 1925. Wheat improved wonderfully in practically all sections during June, and, while thin, heads filled well, with plump berry of good quality. Harvesting has been completed in good shape, and threshing has begun. Chinch bugs were particularly bad in twenty or more counties, through middle section of Missouri from west to east and Stoddard in the southeast.

Oats were seeded upon 2,137,000 acres, and condition of 66 per cent forecasts 21.12 bushels per acre or 45,133,000 bushels, against 49,166,000 from 1,891,000 acres in 1925. Oats made fine improvement after early June rains in most counties, and plants stretched up so that most of crop can be cut for grain. Late sown oats improved most. Rust hurt crop in many of the west and central counties. Some damage from drought was felt in west and southwest sections.

The rye acreage is 26,000, with condition of 80 per cent indicating 11.68 bushels or 304,000, against 300,000 from 25,000 acres last year. Increased acreages are noted in northeast and central counties.

Missouri tame hay acreage is 3,298,000 against 3,399,000 in 1925, and condition is only 65 per cent forecasting 0.99 tons, totalling 3,265,000 tons against 1.10 per acre and 3,735,000 tons in 1925. All varieties of hay have lower prospects than last year, and much loss occurred in spring sown clover. June rains helped hay crops in northern counties, but was too late in most other sections. Hay harvest is well under way. The first crop of alfalfa was good.

Pastures show condition of 75 per cent, helped in most section by June rains. Bluegrass seed was of good quality. Soy bean acreage was increased over last year, and planting continued late to use idle crop land occasioned by acreage of wheat and backward season in other planting.

Farm apples are 60 per cent and commercial orchards 44 per cent; total crop 56 per cent normal, indicating 4,068,000 bushels of which 575,000 barrels are from commercial orchards compared to 646,000 last year. The grand total apple crop in 1925 was 7,264,000 bushels. The farm crop dropped heavily during June. Hail damage occurred in western counties, and blight is bad upon certain varieties. Peaches are good in most northern counties, and fair crop in southeast. Grapes are the most promising of fruit crops.

Gardens made fair progress in June, but generally needed moisture. Potato acreage is 92,000 acres, against 88,000 last year, and 69 per cent condition indicates 6,348,000 bushels against 5,160,000 in 1925. Milk and egg production at first of July was running about the same as a year ago.

Missouri farm production will total near that of 1925, with variation in individual crops. June was cool, but most crops improved. Livestock gained rapidly. Heavy shipments of lambs moved to market, and hog prices were favorable. Farm labor supply is just about equal to demand, and wages are slightly above last year, with farm work well up-to-date. Generous supply of moisture is needed in balance of July and in August for favorable outcome of growing crops.

Idea of Woman's Place Being at Home Is Scorned

Des Moines, Ia., July 15.—Time was when mere man tried to run the world by himself. He was accused of being too chivalrous and protective to think of taking woman in as a partner or co-worker. Man was petted and cajoled and flattered—amused by golf and amazed by the Follies.

Much was said about the "tired business man" but little was said about the "hired business woman."

Then it was that wifey spent her days at home cooking, washing, ironing, mending and sewing to make a favorable impression with the "boss." Man earned the money and spent it. Woman attended rummage sales, pie suppers and kept the family clothes all slicked up for Sunday.

But times are changing. It has been discovered that man is not infallible nor is his the only sex that has brains, courage, intelligence and ambition. Woman has taken her place in the field and already her hands are on the controls which keep industry in motion.

Thus, in substance, did Ida Clyde Clarke, editor of Pictorial Review, describe the change that has taken place in recent years—making of woman a great motive power for good instead of just hirelings or lilywhite playthings.

She was speaking at the National Convention of Business and Professional Women here. Delegates from all parts of the United States heard her upbraid the male of the species and roundly denounce the backsliders among her own sex.

"'Woman's place is in the home,' is one of the most pernicious slogans we have today," she said. "It is a 'fooler'—a pacifier, put into the mouths of women, and they suck away at it, lulled into sweet repose and never dreaming they are sucking wind."

"If woman's place is in the home what about the eight or ten million women who have no home except those they provide for themselves, the speaker asked. If the chief end of woman is to be glorified by man and to be enjoyed by him forever, what about the eight million or so women who are not chosen to be the wives and mothers of men?

The speaker warned that no real progress will be made so long as half the race is on the inside looking out. Business and professional women have become an important element in the business world, said Miss Clark, and they will assume their rightful place in the equasion and stay there.

Henry Orme Kills Wolf Near Hopkins

Henry Orme reports his hounds killing a half grown wolf in the Fay Applegate timber near the Ira Gray home, a mile east of Hopkins. Henry says the farmers of the vicinity are assisting in every way they can to rid the country of wolves and should be commended for their cooperation for without their cooperation, "Hound men" would be handicapped in their fight of extermination. — Hopkins Journal.

Fined by City, Man Faces State Charge

O. O. Wallace was arrested by Night Officer Will Trullinger about 2 o'clock this morning on a charge of drunkenness. Wallace and Edgar Williams, who was driving a car, were said to have arrived in Maryville early this morning from New Market, Ia. Wallace was fined $5 before Mayor W. O. Garrett, acting as police judge.

Wallace, after being fined by the city, was arrested by the state on possession of intoxicating liquor. In a search of the car, a pint of liquor was found.

ATTORNEYS OF NATION MEET

AMERICAN BAR CONVENTION ON AT DENVER.

16 WOMEN ATTEND

Sessions To Continue For Three Days—J. "Ham" Lewis Will Deliver An Address.

Denver, Colo., July 15.—Two thousand of the most noted barristers of the United States were gathered here today for the Forty-ninth Annual Convention of the American Bar Association.

Yesterday a week's session of the commissioners on uniform state laws closed and members prepared for the larger session which opened today and will last through July 16.

Men and women famous in the realm of law and literature are here to attend and take part in the conclave. There time will be spent in hearing lectures which will be held both in the forenoon and afternoon of each day's session, trips to mountain resorts and meetings of legal fraternities, state associations and other groups of the legal profession.

Charles Evans Hughes, past president of the association, and former U. S. Secretary of State, will not be able to attend this year, he has announced.

Celebrities on the program included J. "Ham" Lewis, former U. S. Senator and distinguished for his work in international law; Charles Henry Butler, delegate to The Hague Peace Conference in 1907; Sir James A. M. Aikens, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, Canada, and Jacob M. Dickinson, Secretary of War under President Taft.

Sixteen modern Portias, women barristers, were among the 2,000 members.

Three of the women are judges and one, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, of Washington, D. C., is Assistant Attorney General of the United States.

The women judges are Judge Mary O'Tolle, Washington, D. C.; Judge Mary B. Grossman, Cleveland, Ohio, and Judge Oda Faulconer, Los Angeles, California.

Among the nationally known men to speak will be Mayor William E. Dever, of Chicago; Richard Washburn Child, author; Roscoe Pound, Dean of the Harvard Law School; Guy A. Thompson, of St. Louis, a former special judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri, and head of the Missouri Crime Survey, and Edgar B. Tolman, of Chicago,, editor of the American Bar Association Journal.

Nodaway Cattle Sell for Eastern Shipment

Roy Messbarger sold a load of good Nodaway County cattle on Tuesday's market at St. Joseph at $9.75 a hundred pounds. They averaged 1,137 pounds each and were bought for eastern shipment.

L. D. Young, another Nodaway Countian, sold two loads of 1,223 pound steers at $9.10 on Tuesday's market.

Yesterday Simon Lynch marketed hogs by the truck route. They were trucked to the market by Fred Adams, Dale McGinness and Milan Shell. Mr. Lynch reported the roads not in very good condition between Wilcox and St. Joseph.

Other Nodaway Countians at market yesterday were J. D. McGinness, Donald McGinness and Charles Hollensbe, Pickering; Fred Wray and Max Wray, Hopkins; and Roland Ashford, Maryville.

Week Brings Relief From Hot Weather

Most Of State Receives Excellent Rains Also, Without Hindering Harvest. —Corn Is Fine.

Following the opening days of the week ending Tuesday morning, July 13, which were hot, in continuation of last week's hot weather, there was a reaction to cooler weather, with splendid rains over most of the state and especially all of the central and northwest portions, according to the Missouri weekly weather and crop bulletin of George Reeder, meteorologist at Columbia for the United States department of agriculture.

"However," the report continues, "in the northern border counties east from Harrison, and in the eastern, and southern border counties, and the western border north to Cass, the rains were rather light and insufficient for all purposes.

"The total seasonal rainfall to date, for the State as a whole, is now 72 per cent of the 36 year normal, a gain of about 7 per cent over last week.

"Notwithstanding the rains, the weather was mostly favorable for farm operations and harvesting was practically finished, while threshing got well underway in sections south of the Missouri River. Both quality and quantity run above expectations and better than the average. Harvesting the oat crop progressed; the crop was damaged by rust in Clinton County.

"Corn made quite wonderful growth. The crop still shows quite wide variations in height, but much the greater part is in excellent condition. Some bottom lands are wet and getting weedy; and much of the south east section is still too dry for best results, although scattered showers greatly help matters there.

"Cotton fields are clean and free of injurious insects; plants made growth but still are rather small for the season. The crop is fruiting heavily and blooms appear in nearly all fields.

"Pastures as well as all minor crops are fine in sections covered by recent good rains. Hay making had some trouble during the rainy spell. Most tree fruits, berries, and grapes are quite satisfactory."

Maryville reported 2.11 inches of rain during the week, as compared to an average in the state of 1.55 inches and the thirty-six year normal of .8 inch. The total state rainfall from April 1 to date has been 10.75 inches, as compared to a thirty-six normal for the state of 14.85 inches.

Many Tourists Climb Washington Monument

Washington, July 15.—Many tourists still climb the 555 feet to the top of the Washington Monument, despite the new speedy elevator that makes the trip in one minute and 15 seconds.

Of 1,802 persons who went to the top the other day, 322 walked; on another day, 717 walked out of a total of 1,997.

The old elevator took five minutes. The new one goes so fast that the passengers notice pressure on the ear drums, due to the rapid change in altitude, which was not perceptible on the old one.

WHAT THE WELL DRESSED MAN WEARS

By GIEVES, LTD.
The Old Bond Street Tailors to H. M. the King and H. R. H. the Prince of Wales.

London, July 15.—Brighter colors will predominate in the clothing of the well dressed man this summer.

Although the older, more conservative black coat and striped trousers are still good form for morning and business wear generally, fawns and light solid grays are seen more and more along the Strand and in the business districts.

The double-breasted suit has returned to popular favor this year, with a slightly fuller cut in the waist than previously. A happy medium has finally been found between the high corset-like waist of the suits of four years ago and the straight lines of other years. The two-button double-breasted with the third button slightly out of line, very similar to the standard double breasted, will prove the vogue this season.

Shorter vests has necessitated a revision in the height of the waistline of trousers. Trousers will be of only an average width at the bottoms, usually cut at 17 inches and slightly shorter than last year. The unsighty "high-water" trousers of several years ago are seldom seen as is the case similarly with the Oxford Bags.

The well dressed man will, this summer, wear his trousers just to the tops of his low shoes.

There has been a variation in shoes for the coming summer. Low shoes are, of course, the popular summer wear, with colors running to lighter tans, rather than black and ox-blood shades. Lighter shades of spats are very tasty and white spats of a light material are frequently seen with black shoes.

Hats will have the usual narrow brims, with slightly higher crowns, running to lighter shades in color. Light browns and pearl-greys are quite popular, while the black derby is always good form for informal wear.

Light topcoats in light browns or grey, in knee-lengths, depending upon the height of the wearer, will be popular.

The heavy walking-stick is not seen as frequently as formerly, everyday use calling for a light color and weight.

Miss Marguerite Reardon of Barnard came last night to be the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Bickett, 410 East Third street.

P. A. signifies Pleasure Always

PROVE it, for instance, with a home-rolled cigarette. Get yourself a tidy red tin or a toppy red bag of Prince Albert and make a cigarette today. There's pleasure even in rolling it. The tobacco is crimp-cut and doesn't dance out of the paper. Saves time, temper, tobacco.

That's a detail, of course. But just put one of these cigarettes between your lips and light it. Man, oh, man—what a wonderful taste! Cool and refreshing. Sweet and fragrant. Mellow and mild, but with a body that satisfies all the way down. You'll say so.

Sooner you get going with some P. A. and the makin's papers, the sooner you'll know what a grand and glorious tobacco Prince Albert is for cigarettes. There's a P. A.-sunshine shop not far from here where they hand out *P*leasure *A*lways in tidy red tins and toppy red bags.

Incidentally, if you smoke a pipe, try a load of Prince Albert this way. P. A. will make your old jimmy-pipe yield more downright smoke-pleasure than you ever thought possible. It will for a fact. The tobacco's the thing . . . how you smoke it is optional.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins and toppy red bags. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

THE LEAK IN THE BOAT

Vernon Tenold of Lake Norden, S. D., aged 14, adventuring on the lake with his youngter brother in an old boat they had discovered, and being blown out into the lake in a high wind, without oars, faced a real problem when the water poured in through a hole in the bottom. But by the time there were four inches of water in the boat, Vernon had mastered the situation. He thrust his finger into the hole, and held it there until the boat had drifted clear across the lake saving the lives of both.

Vernon had never heard of the Dutch boy and the "leak in the dike" either. Thus history repeats itself.

This, however, need not be a signal for boys in general to begin stopping leaks with fingers. It would not only deprive dike-builders, boat-builders, and plumbers of honest employment, but would make a lot of fingers unnecessarily sore.

An analytical view of the problem leads to the conclusion that while both of these finger-plugging boys were heroic, neither was any too clever. Almost anything would do as well as a finger to stop a leak, and save pain and leave the hero free to do something else. A stick or stone in the dike, a handkerchief or piece of shirt in the boat, would doubtless have served the purpose admirably. Cotton is standard material for making boats tight.

Still, if we're going to be so practical, heroism will go into a decline.

THE SPORTING KING

King Alfonso, visiting in England, as he likes to do, is distinguishing himself playing polo. The other day he played in an army match, with a team of Lancers against Hussars. He himself hit two goals and won the match for his team.

That naturally pleases a sporting nation like the English. Alfonso, in fact, is a genuine sportsman, who frankly prefers physical exercise to statesmanship, and might be called "the sporting king". Nature has made him an athlete, whether she made him a wise ruler or not. On a memorable visit to England quite a few years ago, when he was still more agile and untrammeled than he is now, he is said to have created consternation by turning handsprings up and down the halls of Buckingham Palace, where he was King George's guest.

Kings as kings don't amount to much nowadays, so when they can excel in sport it is so much to the good.

A HORRIFING EPITHET

Lady Astor, formerly of Kentucky, now a prominent member of the the British Parliament, has won a new distinction. George, Lansbury labor member, called her a "liar", to her face, in a parliamentary debate.

Just how her ladyship reacted to that unaccustomed epithet is not recorded, but the offending member was promptly called to order and asked to withdraw the expression. Whereupon he distinguished himself and the unabriged dictionary by apoligizing and explaining that the lady, instead of lying, was merely guilty of a "terminological inexactitude."

That was dreadful enough. Thinking it over, we may agree that a short and ugly word is no worse than two long and ugly words.

Real vacation hospitality: The governor of New York sent President Coolidge a fishing license.

The purchase of stocks and bonds is by no means confined to speculators and persons of considerable means. What Other Editors Say

THE ALIENIST BEFORE THE COURT.

The professional partisan alienist seems at last without friends. Long distrusted by the public, he is now haled before the court of public opinion by his own fellows—the members of the American Psychiartric Association, in convention assembled. Elimination of paid opinion by partisan alienists is demanded. Instead the psychiatrists want impartial opinion by experts appointed by the court.

To the lay mind this sounds reasonable enough. However sincere the partisan alienist may be, the very conditions of his employment have operated for years to place him under grave suspicion. Chief resentment centers in his invariable association with wealthy defendants. Seldom if ever in the past two decades has a rich man, accused of a major crime, lacked an array of experts to testify as to his mental incompeteney and therefore legal inculpability. Reports of enormous fees for this testimony have only emphasized that the poor man is never thus befriended.

The system first came into prominence with the Thaw trial and reached its flower at the Loeb-Leopold hearings. The diametrically opposing testimony given by alienists for the defense and prosecution in these two notorious instances demonstrates the imperative necessity for impartial expert advice for the court in similar cases in the future.

The Massachusetts system was commended to the Association by Dr. L. Vernon Briggs of Boston. Under this, an expert examination of all persons accused in capital cases and felonies is conducted before trial by two competent psychiatrists appointed by the State Commission of Mental Diseases. The findings are then laid before the court for such action as is deemed fitting. The entire theory of American jurisprudence is based on one thing—impartiality. Paid partisan opinion should not be allowed to enter.—Dearborn Independent.

A POOR EXAMPLE IN DEBT PAYING.

The House Committee on Indian Affairs recently reported favorably on an appropriation of $463,732.49 to reimburse Shawnee and Delaware Indians for property destroyed during the Civil War. If any of the Indians affected by this appropriation are still alive, it will no doubt be very pleasing to them. In 1867 the Secretary of the Interior reported that these Indians were friendly and loyal. A commission was appointed and in 1874 the Secretary of the Interior reported the claims favorably to Congress. In something like fifty years after the claims of these Indians had gone through all the necessary legal formalities, they have now reached the place where the House Committee has reported favorably on the bill. It has been very easy for many of us to become excited to the point of exhaustion over the slowness of our allies during the World War in the matter of paying their bills to us. But in the matter of our paying our bills to the Indians, there has been less excitement and much less popular indignation.—Thrift Magazine.

THE BOSS OF THE AIR GETS THE AIR.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY

Compiled by
The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia
Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary
July 11-17.

The home, the church, the school, and masonry—these are among the institutions which have contributed to the making of Missouri. It was 119 years ago this week—July 17, 1807, that the first Masonic lodge was chartered in what is now the State of Missouri. This pioneer chapter was at Ste. Genevieve. Louisiana Lodge, No. 109, as it was named, was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania.

Masonry came to the West as the American settlers pushed their way into the new regions. One of the pioneer Masonic lodges organized in the new regions country was at old Kaskaskia on the Illinois side of the Mississippi. Only a little over a year after its founding, some of the members in the Indiana Territory withdrew, and formed the lodge at Ste. Genevieve on the opposite side of the Mississippi.

The members of the first Masonic lodge in Missouri were largely merchants. In the pioneer days the merchants made yearly trips to Philadelphia where they purchased their goods. While in the east a number of these men received their degrees in Old French Lodge, No. 73, Philadelphia.

As more Masons came into the Territory, and as Missourians became members of the fraternity in the East, these pioneers decided that they should have their own chapter in the Territory. They petitioned the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania to grant them a charter. On July 17, 1807, a Warrant of Constitution was granted them by the Pennsylvania Grand Lodge for a lodge to be "held in the town of Ste. Genevieve, Territory of Louisiana." The first officers of this Lodge were: Otho Strader, master; Dr. Aaron Elliott and Joseph Heartick, wardens. Among its members were Pierre Chouteau and Bartholomew Berthold.

This initial Masonic lodge in Missouri ceased to exist in 1816-17. This decline was due no doubt to the sparseness of the population of the Territory, as well as the effect of the War of 1812. The rapid growth of St. Louis was another factor which had its influence.

It is interesting to note that in Ste. Genevieve today there is not a chartered lodge. Very few Masons now live in old Ste. Genevieve. Also there is only one lodge in Ste. Genevieve county.

Missouri masonry has thus been in existence almost a century and a quarter. This first lodge, as has already been mentioned, was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. Other early lodges were chartered by the Grand Lodges of Tennessee, Kentucky, and Indiana. Perhaps the Grand Lodge of Tennessee has contributed as much as any Grand Lodge to the history of Missouri masonry. It was this Grand Lodge which chartered Missouri Lodge No. 12; Joachim Lodge, No. 25; and St. Charles Lodge, No. 28—these three lodges forming the Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Missouri in 1821.

From these three lodges which organized the Grand Lodge, there have come 662 lodges. According to the last annual report of the grand secretary the membership of Missouri masonry numbers 111,969, as over against 100 members in 1825. Today there are Masonic lodges in every county but one in the State. The largest one in the State is Ivanhoe Lodge No. 146 at Kansas City, with a membership of 4,163. During the past year, 4,717 new Masters Masons have been raised.

From the time of the founding of Louisiana Lodge No. 109 in Ste. Genevieve until the present day, many prominent Missourians have been affiliated with the fraternity. Among these men are Meriwether Lewis, Kit Carson, William Muir Williams, Samuel L. Clemens, Allan McDowell, John David Vincil, Alexander M. Dockery, Xenophen Ryland, General John J. Pershing, Arthur M. Hyde, Herbert Spencer Hadley, and Admiral Robert E. Coontz. The first honorary member of the Missouri Grand Lodge was General Marquis de LaFayette.

Substitute for Diamond

After several years of research, metallurgical experts of a steel plant at Wetzlar, in southern Germany, claim to have produced a metal alloy nearly as hard as the diamond, says Popular Science Monthly. The difference in the scale of hardness is merely one-tenth of a degree. The alloy consists of a fused mixture of metallic tungsten and tungsten carbides.

Tests have shown that this tungsten alloy, while somewhat softer than diamond, offers many practical advantages. It is said to have metallic structure and to retain its cutting power much longer than the diamond that has crystalline structure and is extremely brittle, hence soon loses its cutting power by the chipping of its crystal edges.

Origin of Halloween

Halloween, or All Hallows eve, is the name given to the 31st of October as the vigil of Hallowmas or All Saints day. Though now known as little else but the eve of the Christian festival, Halloween and its formerly attendant ceremonies long antedate Christianity. The two chief characteristics of ancient Halloween were the lighting of bonfires and the belief that of all nights in the year this is the one during which ghosts and witches are most likely to wander abroad. About the first of November the Druids held their autumn festival and lighted fires in honor of the Sungod in thanksgiving for the harvest. The Druids also believed that on the eve of this festival Saman, lord of death, called together the wicked souls that within the past twelve months had been condemned to inhabit the bodies of animals. On the Druid ceremonies were grafted some of the characteristics of the Roman festival in honor of Pomona held about the first of November, in which nuts and apples, as representing the winter store of fruits, played an important part.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

WOMAN COULD NOT SLEEP

Her Mother-in-Law Knew A Remedy

Mrs. Belle Thompson was in a very weak and run-down condition for four years. She had great difficulty in getting to sleep at night and even then did not sleep soundly. She would wake up again and again. Besides this her appetite was poor. "My mother-in-law told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash," she writes. "I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I was not the same woman at all. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does me more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me." —Mrs. Belle Thompson, R. 2, Rossville, Georgia.

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health? If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped others, why shouldn't it help you?

ANY EYE STRAIN MAY IMPAIR VISION

Many Persons Have Headache and Other Nervous Ills Due to Absence of Proper Glasses or to Wearing Wrong Lenses.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

This is the time of year when you have more or less leisure if you are a business man or woman. Of course, if you live in the country, this is your busiest season. What I have to say today is intended particularly for the town dweller, but it will be well if country folk bear in mind the advice and act on it later.

This is a good time to have your eyes examined. If the office you usually patronize is open, it will not be so busy as it is in the Winter. More time can be spent on your particular case.

As I study people I am more and more convinced that many of them suffer from eye-strain without realizing it. Headache, dullness of intellect, unwillingness to work, indigestion, and many other symptoms may be present, and pronounced as they are, they may not suggest eye strain as the cause.

If the sight is so bad that reading and writing are difficult, it is perfectly natural to think about glasses. But even though such glasses help to make things clear nearby, they may not relieve the headache or other symptoms.

In testing eyes, the first step is to try the distant vision and see what lenses make it clear. As a matter of fact the distant vision may be distinct and yet be so at the expense of eye strain. Without consciousness of the fact, you may be making terrific effort to see and are seeing only because of the effort.

I want to make clear to you that the mere fact of having good sight is no proof of the absence of eye strain. Recently I saw a young woman who has suffered the most intense headache for a year or more. Hardly a day has passed but she has had this symptom. It has been a great hardship to her in many ways.

In this case glasses for reading have been fitted time and time again. As a matter of form, perhaps, she was given distance glasses, but, like most folks, since she could see so well without them and had the usual aversion to wearing glasses all the time, she rarely put them on.

After taking all manner of treatment and endless quantities of medicines, it was suggested that she wear her distance glasses all the time. In one day the headache disappeared and the health of the young woman has steadily improved since.

Of course, this is an extreme case of what eye strain is capable of doing, but there are thousands of persons in this world who are needless victims of headache and other nervous troubles who can be relieved in this simple way. If you suspect you have eye strain, see about it at once.

Too commonly we defeat our own good by being too confident of our own powers of discernment. Let the experts have a chance.

Answers To Health Queries

Mrs. L. M. A. Q.—My 6-year-old girl complains of a pain in the upper part of her leg. What do you suggest doing?

2.—What is good for a dry, hacking cough?

A.—I would suggest that you have an X-ray taken to determine whether or not there is any bone condition.

2.—I would advise that the patient keep away from crowded rooms where ventilation is neglected. Avoid overeating and have plenty of sleep every night. A tub or shower bath every day, plenty of exercise, quantities of water to drink and exposure to direct sunlight—all have their value. A good tonic would be advisable. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. D. B. Mc. Q.—Is yellow oxide of mercury ointment what you advise for promoting the growth of the eyelashes?

A.—Yes, that is the proper name.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gaillard because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Professor Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island his only visitor. Cadrigan asks her to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating the professor's enemies may harm her.

Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her Sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica, across the bay from Professor Husted. The latter lives like a hermit, Veronica stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board, and their host introduces himself as Pol Gaillard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol rows over to the Husted house, and while he is ashore his sloop is cut adrift. The next night he and Veronica meet at Professor Husted's house. On leaving, Pol discovers that his boat has been scuttled. The professor invites Pol to be his guest. He accepts, although he is able to salvage his boat.

Pol is invited to dine with the Cadrigans, and through Veronica meets Professor Husted. While calling on the professor Pol's boat is cut adrift. He recovers it, but the next night an attempt is made to sink it. Professor Husted invites Pol to stay at his house. Pol accepts, but later goes back to his boat, as he feels his interest in the professor's affairs has disturbed the old man. Pol pays his dinner call on the Cadrigans. Veronica is out and Cadrigan receives him. During the conversation Pol uncovers his animosity toward Cadrigan, and they quarrel.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

Gulia Drops A Hint.

Cadrigan had never been a violent man. Having had much to do with brutal and violent types of men, he possessed a disgust and contempt for such. In this respect he was rather like his father, who, in his rough contacts as a city boss, had been wont to depend upon his bodyguard of "rednecks," the term that preceded "roughnecks." This had not been through any physical timidity or lack of personal prowess, but a point of dignity.

With some effort Cadrigan recovered his habitual poise. Without a glance at Pol, he picked up the papers he had sorted, thrust them into a brief case lying on the desk, rose, and walked to the door. Luigi helped him into his light motor coat, handed him his hat and gloves.

"See that this fellow leaves the premises at once," said Cadrigan. "If he tries to bully you, call up the hands from the stable. You will know what to say to Miss Veronica when she comes in."

"Si, senor."

Cadrigan went out the front door, Luigi following with his fitted bag. The car, a high powered coupe, was standing there, with the chauffeur beside it. Pol went out after Luigi and stood on the step as Cadrigan got into the car, the chauffeur closing the door behind him. Pol observed that the car was equipped with new tires throughout, these scarcely used and of a gripping pattern.

Cadrigan started the motor, and drove off. The chauffeur glanced from Luigi to Pol, then walked away to the garage. Luigi stood motionless as if waiting to be addressed.

"Why did you cut my boat adrift, Luigi?"

Luigi turned his palms upward. His monk-like features showed a sort of passive resignation.

"You are mistaken, signor."

"I am not mistaken. The moon was bright and when I have watched a men engaged in doing one thing I know that man when I see him doing something else, just as I can tell a bird from its flight—or a horse that I have seen run in a steeplechase."

"I have nothing to say to you signor. You will please to leave the premises as Signor Cadrigan commanded."

Pol nodded. He went down the steps, Luigi standing as motionless as a caryatid against a white stone column. On the driveway Pol stopped and turned.

"I shall say nothing to Miss Veronica about this incident. I mean my exchange of blows with Mr. Cadrigan. You, of course, will do as you see fit about it."

"I think it better not to disturb Miss Veronica ever, signor."

"Precisely my idea, Luigi." Pol said, and walked briskly down the drive and out onto the road.

The day had by this time developed the quality of March weather rather than that of late June; a roaring northwest wind, of which the violence appeared to be increasing, and hurled across a glittering blue sky great cloud masses that were indigo or white, according to their weight of contents. The road, a fine new one, was almost dry. It led nearly straight to the New York-Boston pike. But at the head of the little bay it put off a small dirt road that followed the shore around to pass the Italian colony and the barred entrance to Husted's point.

Turning off on this detaur, which was a slightly longer route to reach the town, Pol discovered from the tracks that Cadrigan's car had passed that way. Veronica also had passed that way on her ride, as could be told from the hoof prints of her mount with no wheel tracks to correspond. It was also probable that she would return that way, a rider naturally preferring earth to concrete and a slightly traveled, winding route to one thronging with motor traffic.

Pol seated himself on a flat rock at the side of the road, where for some time he watched the maneuvers of a red squirrel in an old apple tree across the way.

The bright faced Spinelli children passed returning from school. They paused to inquire after the health of Nightingale, but did not linger, having evidently instructions to report for certain duties, or merely to report all present and accounted for and no traffic casualties. A market car approached, then stopped, the youth driving it, who was at the pimpled age, requesting a match. Pol supplied his need, then asked casually if he had much custom in those parts.

"Naw," replied the youth in the bored and blase fashion of his sort. "Them Wops raises their own truck. Mondays and Thursdays we leave a basket o' grub for old man Husted. He's the nut that owns all that point. Got a coupla million dollars of real estate locked up goin' nobody no good."

"How do you get in?" Pol asked.

"I don't git in. I set the basket in a box over the wall, and the old galoot comes after it. We wouldn't bother Miss Cadrigan. She's the only one goes there. If it wasn't for her them Wops would swipe it off'n him. I see some car tracks goin' in there when I stopped just now."

Pol pointed at the road. "Those tracks?"

"No. Them's Mr. Cadrigan's. I seen him comin' out of the Spinelli's house. Spinelli's his right hand man. Say, he's got a daughter that's an eyeful"—the pimply features wore the age-old Eatyr look.

"I went past the gate of Husted's lane a while ago and noticed that it was fastened with a chain and padlock that would do for a garage full of Rolls-Royces," Pol mentioned.

"Yes, and one good kick would bust the gate. The old man ain't all there, even if they did let him out of the bughouse. Maybe it was the doctor went in. Miss Veronica sends him sometimes to give the old bird the once-over. She's got a key. But, say, that lady don't bother with no key. She goes over the top. Well, mister, I gotta leave my swill and beat it back, Gedap, Dobbin," and he opened up the gas.

Scarcely had this purveyor left when Pol's policy of watchful waiting and reading as others run was rewarded by another encounter. A vehicle of the same ubiquitous mark approached. This time it was Guila driving, and, strange to say, she was alone. The children must have had their several duties, after all. At sight of Pol she stopped.

"The kids told me you were waiting here, Mr. Gaillard. I thought you had gone."

"I sailed around the point to the town, Guila. Mrs. Tate asked me for luncheon, and I stopped to pay a thank you call at Mr. Cadrigan's. He has just left for town, and his daughter is riding."

Guila moved her shoulders uneasily. Then she asked the same question already put to Pol by Mrs. Tate and Cadrigan.

"Had a falling out with old man Husted?"

"O, no. But it struck me that he preferred to be alone."

"Well," said Guila. "I should worry about him, but I gotta hunch he better not be alone."

"Are you on your way to tell Miss Cadrigan that?"

"Yes, I am. She's been nice to me. Given me lots of clothes and things. What I really came to tell her was that I think she better not go over there at nights," and she added, reluctantly, "especially not tonight."

"Do you mind telling me why?" Pol asked.

Guila looked distressed. "I better not say anything, Mr. Gaillard. I'm supposed to be taking over some eggs. I got no license to stop here talking to you, neither. It's just asking for trouble."

"Then don't wait," said Pol. "I doubt if you'll find Miss Veronica at home. Suppose you leave it to me. I'll get in touch with her a little later and manage to give her your hint."

"All right. That would make me easier in my mind. Chances are she wouldn't pay much attention to what I said, anyhow. She ain't stuck up like some rich girls, but she's kind of high and mighty at that. Her father being a count, mebbe, and her mother one of the old families here, and her stepfather the big cheese of the whole place. This thing gets my goat."

College Students Today More Alert, Says Columbia Grad

New York, July 15.—The college student of today has a harder time in his work ,is more alert, and accomplishes more than did his predecessor of the last generation, despite all the ranting and roaring about this "Jazz Age," in the opinion of Archibald Douglas, now serving his second term as alumni trustee of Columbia University.

Mr. Douglas, who graduated in '94, is prepared to deny all the charges of the old timers that the youth of today is in any way inferior. In fact he thinks quite the opposite is the case.

The present students may carry an assortment of bootleggers' cards in their pockets, use a language that shifts from day to day and rank their jazz as their other studies, Mr. Douglas thinks, but nevertheless the boy or girl in college now has higher academic standards to gain than ever before.

"People who have the idea that the past is always the most perfect time," said Mr. Douglas, "and are convinced that modern youth is disrupting the nation, should rub shoulders a bit with the boys who are responsible for the high standards the colleges have now set for themselves.

"It is because the student body as a whole is more alert mentally that these standards have been raised to such a degree that the college man of twenty years ago would have been too discouraged to make the struggle."

Says Chicago Will Be U. S. Culture Capital

Otto H. Kahn Says Bulk Of United States Will Soon Be Tributary To Capital Of Illinois.

Chicago, July 15.—The bulk of the United States soon will be tributary to Chicago—America's Mecca of culture and art, Otto H. Kahn of New York, patron of music and art, believes. Kahn came to Chicago to attend the opening of the Ravinia opera, Chicago's annual musical event.

"The city is evolving its own school of art, music and literature out of its great commercial prowess, ambition great life and strength," Kahn said.

"There is no conflict between great commercial power and cultural ambition. All demonstrates this. Even in the smaller cities there has been a great advance toward the greater things of life. Prosperity gives man time to realize that there must be something better and he strives to find it."

Chicago's position in the realm of art will be independent of Europe and the East, Kahn believes and will be the expression of the life of America, mostly of the Middle West.

Ravaging Flea Insect Alarms Cotton Growers

Washington, July 15.—The cotton crop in several southern state has suffered considerable damage from a flea insect that ravages the plants, according to the Agricultural Department.

The insects, which feed on buds and growing tips of cotton plants, have invaded all the southern cotton states from Texas to Georgia. They insert sharp beaks into the growing plants and extract sap, killing branches and buds.

The cotton flea or cotton hopper, as it is sometimes called, breeds in wild host plants and then migrates to cotton. The devastating insect is small but can be seen with the naked eye.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine has ordered his etomologists to make an extensive study of the flea to determine the most effective methods of control. Until some control measure is found cotton growers should dust their crops with superfine sulpher or flowers of sulpher, the department advises.

Curious Inmate of Jail Discovers Jug; Trouble Is Prompt

Because one of the inmates of the county jail became curious, all of the prisoners are now chafing in close confinement in the cage which fronts their cell doors. Even the liberty of the corridor about the cage has been denied them.

The curious one took advantage of the absence of Sheriff J. B. Manifold several days ago and started on a tour of inspection of his quarters. Contrary to most tours, it ended not in happiness, but in chagrin and sickness.

The short trip of the curious one came to an end when he found a jug of confiseated liquor, stored on the second floor of the jail and forgotten long ago. There followed a brief drunk and a deathly sickness not quite so brief for two of the prisoners.

There is a large hole in the ceiling of the jail that allows a stovepipe to pass through to the chimney opening on the second story. The pipe passes through the upper half of the jail, which at one time was used for the confinement of women prisoners. It has long been in disuse for its original purpose and for some time has provided a storage place for confiscated liquor. A jug of corn whisky had been left there by ex-Sheriff Fred Tucker. It was this "little brown jug" that ended the tour.

"Curious" crawled through the opening and found the jug. It had been there for months and its contents were soured, contrary to the belief that aged liquor is the best. This was no barrier to his thirst, which had been made more pronounced by his confinement. After the investigator had sampled the contents, the jug was passed to a buddy. Something happened, and it was not pleasant. "A fool and his liquor soon part."

There was no third degree given; it was just another tour conducted by Sheriff Manifold upon his return and the click of a bolt into place.—Bethany Clipper.

CHARLESTON POWER.

Stockholm, July 15.—Fifty couples doing the Charleston on a dance floor create 42 horsepower a second, or energy equal to that contained in a large automobile, according to statistics published in a local newspaper.

Estimating the weight of the man at 165 pounds, and that of his partner at 132 pounds, as an average weight, it is declared that the couple while dancing would create 506.21 foot pounds of work a second. Each couple dancing would require 10 to 12 minutes to create one horsepower, according to variations in the intensity of gravity at different points.

Peking, July 15.—Two hundred and nineteen students of the Minkuo University who have failed to attend classes regularly, due to frequent political demonstrations, have been ordered to suspend classes for one year.

Steals Car, Hits Taxi, Kills Pedestrian; Court Says "Go Home and Be Good Girl"

Paris—Some people can get away with anything in Montmarte. It all depends on who you are and what the judge thinks about you. Leonie Joseph, one of the "petites femmes," who play around the night haunts in the rue Fontaine, has just had the experience.

Leonie and her little pal, Madeleine Lafarge, wandered from bar to bar until the dawn of May 6, getting gayer and gayer as the night wore along. Then they started for a well-known place where supper and breakfast are served at the same hour, according to whether the customer is just up or about to retire. In front of the place Leonie espied an automobile. It bore a familiar number.

"Oh, it's the bagnole of my Alphonse," she yelled to Madeleine. "Suppose we drew profit from the occasion to make a turn of the quarter and then to the Bois."

That word "bagnole," by the way, is perfectly good French of the French Academy Dictionary for "box car," but the habitues of the Midnight Sun quarter of Paris use it for anything on wheels that can convey a traveler where he desires to go.

In "cinq secs," or five seconds, Leonie was at the wheel and the car was speeding up toward the place Pigalle. It did not get far. First it crashed into a taxi, hurling the chauffeur from his seat and breaking his leg. Then the "bagnole" mounted the sidewalk and killed a woman going to her daily toil.

Leonie got scared and jumped from the car like an acrobat. As she fled "with all her legs," as witnesses of the incidents afterward told the police, the auto whirled on its base a couple of times, overturned half a dozen fruit merchants' pushcarts—the owners were having a "vin blanee" at the moment—and finally came to a stop after having demolished the plate glass window of a jewelry store.

When Leonie was seized and taken to the police station she told the commissary she knew nothing about what had happened. However, after reflection, she deemed it wiser to admit the facts and merely blamed the bad quality of the liquor she and Madeleine had absorbed. "Worse than ze bootleg of the Americans," she insinuated.

The excuse seemed rather thin but it was filled out so well by Maitre Maurice Blum at the Fourth Police Court, Judge Gorse presiding, that Leonie got out of it with four months—suspende dsentence.

"Now go home and be a good girl," admonished the judge. "And before you drive another 'bagnole' see that you have a driver's license."

Hooch Helps Trap Monkeys in India

Small Dogs Are Used As Lure For Tigers, Huge Pythons Are Fed Until Helpless.

New York.—There ought to be a law about it. Why should monkeys be allowed to drink liquors when the effect on them is even worst than what Mr. Volstead claims it is on humans?

The whole thing began when George M. Distany arrived here from Singapore with 28 monkeys, two giant pythons, two beautiful Bengal tigers, a baby elephant, a leopard and numerous other animals. When he told how they were captured it is reported that several socities got all cluttered up with denunciatory statements.

"As soon as we approached," said Mr. Distany, "the monkeys climbed high into the tops of trees. We tried burning decayed fish under the trees, and a few of the monkeys became drugged and fell down, but we almost suffered the same effect ourselves, so we gave that system up.

"So we tired leaving pans filled with a powerful native liquor at the bottom of the trees. Sure enough, the monkeys came down, dipped their paws in the home brew and licked them, and became so stupefied that they were easily captured.

"One poor little chap named Pigtail acquired the habit, and had to have his nip three times a day. During the trip back he committed suicide by diving to the deck from the mast head."

The tigers were captured, Mr. Distany said, when small dogs decoyed them into cages. The dogs escaped through little doors on the other side when the large beasts entered. The pythons were provided with so much food that they couldnt move. Then they were just picked up and carried away. They weighed half a ton each. One was 28 feet long, the other 23 feet. The animals will be sold to various zoos.

It stands to reason that the more miles you run your car the more wear there is right here in your cylinders —and the greater the space there is between each cylinder wall and its piston.

SINCLAIR OILS
Your lubricating oil must fill and seal this space. The more miles you drive your car, the more space there is—and the heavier must be your lubricating oil. Sinclair has found that a certain average wear for a certain make of car occurred at a definite number of miles—at 1,000 to 2,000 miles and at 10,000 to 12,000 miles. The Sinclair Recommendation Index will tell you what grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil fits the degree of wear in your engine.
